(Andreas Gruner & Florian Bielefeldt)

The Moonhand

The Moonhand is the concept to solve the energy issue on the northern hemisphere. This simple and clever concept assures manageable costs, no failure proneness, maximum environmental compatibility, disengagement from postcolonial interdependency's – and free energy. We want to develop an Equal Speed Powerplant for sustainable production of energy: Towed by the moon – to which it is attached to by a huge carbon fibre spoke – the Equal Speed Powerplant drives savely on a rail around the world and delivers perpetual energy to the countries of the northern hemisphere it passes through. In comparison with a conventional powerplant, which generates power through rotating turbines by burning coal, oil, gas or uranium, the rotation in the Equal Speed Powerplant is generated by the locomotion of the powerplant itself.

Andreas Gruner (*1981) & Florian Bielefeldt (*1977) are the current agents of the Fortunists and they digitise and publish the Fortunists works. They are taking on the task of the fortunist legacy which is to fill the gaps of the art historical narrative since their first appearance in 1947. As the latest generation of this group they also produce a contemporary body of work like the Moonhand Project, the documentary LOST DRONES or SHRED D' ART which is a multi-performance to solve the asymmetric distribution of values in the art market in 2018. The Fortunists received several grants and fellowships and their latest work was recently shown e.g. at the Ostrale'O16 ErrorX in Dresden, in the Art Foundation Schöppingen and at the Cellu l'arte Shortfilm Festival in Jena.
